AIA Recognize BRR for Diversity Best Practices

BRR Architecture has been recognized by the AIA as one of twelve honorees for the Diversity Recognition Program in the 2008 inaugural year. The honorees are AIA members whose work signifies best practices by providing strategic initiatives that promote a more inclusive, diverse profession.

Our submission highlights the efforts of our Diversity Committee that reinforces an internal commitment to our multi-cultural staff. The committee strives to implement programs for all BRR staff members that enhance opportunities and encourage diversity. The committee also collaborates with educational, business and civic organizations to support mentoring programs that will expose students of all cultural backgrounds to the architectural profession. From formal leadership training programs to our Community Caring Program, BRR encourages all employees to embrace and support diversity efforts that lead to a stronger, richer office environment.

BRR Architecture will be recognized at the AIA 2009 National Convention and Design Exhibition in San Francisco. The theme for 2009, The Power of Diversity: Practice in a Complex World, speaks to the goals of the Diversity Recognition Program.
